B. Reading & Critical Thinking

Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Environmental conservation is vital for our planet's health and future generations' well-being. The natural world provides essential resources like clean air, water, and food. However, human activities such as deforestation and pollution have harmed the environment. Sustainable practices are necessary to mitigate these impacts. By conserving biodiversity and protecting habitats, we can maintain the balance of ecosystems that support life.

Green technologies are effective in environmental conservation. Renewable energy sources like solar, wind, and hydropower are sustainable alternatives to fossil fuels, which contribute to climate change. Advancements in recycling and waste management reduce pollution. It is good. Governments, businesses, and individuals must adopt eco-friendly practices to reduce carbon footprints and promote sustainability.

Education and awareness are crucial for environmental conservation. Informed people are more likely to take action to protect the environment. Schools, media, and community programs can spread knowledge and encourage environmental stewardship. Community involvement in conservation projects empowers individuals to contribute to their local environments. Collective action ensures a vibrant and habitable planet for future generations.
